"For us, it was important to be able to tell a deeper character story than what they've been able to do with the series." She also explained, "And to tell it in a way that a child really can understand and relate to, and maybe even their parents get a deeper meaning from it. You can have a hard day at school or daycare and you can rise above those

their experience and what my kids loved about the show to the pitch, and I think that really helped," says Brunker. "Our take was, we really wanted to build this around the emotional journey of one character, so it felt like more of a theatrical experience. You go on a journey with one of these characters overcoming their struggles, and the whole team is involved, but we felt that that was the best way to bring an audience deeper into the story."[7]Casting[]On October 15, 2020, Iain Armitage, Marsai Martin, Yara Shahidi, Kim Kardashian, Randall Park, Dax Shepard, Tyler Perry, Jimmy Kimmel were announced as part of the cast.[8] On May 3, 2021, the cast and characters were announced.[9] Adam Levine, Perry and Kardashian joined the cast because their respective children were fans of the show.[10] For the role of Ryder, more than 1,000 people auditioned before Will Brisbin a 15-years old actor from Sherwood Park, Alberta, Canada, got the role. During an interview with Collider, Brunker spoke about enjoying the voice cast overall. "The core cast of pups and Ryder are all kids, and that was new for us and really worked with them to try to get true, meaningful performances out of all the characters, and I thought they did an amazing job. The character of Chase, played by Iain [Armitage], goes on such a wonderful emotional journey that's a little bit unexpected and he just brought so much to it. He broke our hearts in some moments. You really end up rooting for him. In terms of improvisation, I would say Marsai's deliveries were the things that were most surprising. She almost couldn't do anything bad. When we were going through the takes, it was like, "This is great in a different way. And this is great in a different way." She was wonderful and brought so much energy to it. Everybody was wonderful. Dax [Shepard] is the nicest guy, who was game on for everything. Tyler Perry was thrilled to be a part of it. His son is a big fan, and he certainly loves to improvise and do lots of takes. We couldn't have had a better cast or a better experience for recording them."[10]In an interview with Screen Rant, Iain Armitage spoke about the film and how he aspires to be like his canine counterpart Chase, a fun, funny, smart, brave, loyal dog. And he's a police dog, and he's sort of the, I don't think he's the head of the team, but he's really on top of things. I think he's very cool under pressure. He's very helpful. And he always loves to help other people. And he's always succeed, but I try. "According to Armitage, "The cool thing about voice-over is, you can't convey things with your body because, of course, they don't see it. So you sort of have everything that you're going to be doing for the character come through in your voice, which is hard, but it's also kind of fun. It's a fun challenge, but on the upside, you can show up to work in pajamas, and they won't get mad attend to have everything that you're going to be doing for the character come through in your voice, which is hard, but it's also kind of fun. you. So that balances out. But I think just trying to really bring emotion into my voice in some of those scenes and to really make it clear that I care about Ryder [Will Brisbin] and my fellow pups on the team."[11] There are 250 filmmakers with a team of about 60 devoted to the animation. Their biggest challenge was creating high-quality theatrical animation that didn't lose the style of the series. They were also especially interested in creating action scenes that had more of a realistic quality. [7] Trivia [1] This is the second theatrical film based on a Nick Jr. show, with the first allegory for the biggest challenge with adapting popular kids cartoons for a feature film. The Canadian movieis more than an extended episode of the beloved the familiar aspects are there, but the property is given a fresh new look, a new setting, and new characters. Several of these new elements, however, simply don't work. PAW Patrol has enough action to keep young fans entertained, but parents will likely be bored by the dragging pace and convoluted plot. PAW Patrol as they head to Adventure City, where Mayor Humdinger has cheated his way to power. The moviewas produced by Spin Master, the same toy company responsible for the TV series (and merchandise). It was directed by Cal Brunker, and its screenplay was written by Billy Frolick, Brunker and bob Barlen. These names are all accomplished in the world of feature animation; however, they're new to the world of PAW Patrol and it shows. PAW Patrol: The Moviefeels slightly off, almost like an imitation of the popular kids program rather than a 90-minute story based on that world. There are familiar elements from the franchise Marshall having a comedic tumble or Rubble talking about snacks but the moments feel shoehorned in, and contrast the more dramatic tone set by the surrounding narrative. Part of the issue is, no doubt, the change of setting; by leaving Adventure Bay, PAW Patrol: The Moviealso abandons the majority of characters long-time fans have fallen in love with. Mayor Goodway, Chickaletta, and Cap'n Turbot all have very minor cameos, while other beloved characters don't appear at all. The animation style used for PAW Patrol: The Moviedoesn't help with the transition from small tobig screen either. In many ways, the visuals are better than ever, and many small children will be positively enchanted by the bright colors and vibrant aesthetic. Yet, theoverall new style doesn't quite match theshow in ways that some viewers might find distracting or even irritating. The most noticeable changes are to the movie's main characters, Ryder and Chase. Ryder, in particular, is almost unrecognizable. Somehow, the movie manages to make him seem even more impossibly young (especially when driving). More subtle are the changes in tone: Humdinger is a lot less goofy, Ryder has a moment of mean-spirited glee, and Liberty (the new pup) threatens a stranger with physical violence.

Overall, the world in PAW Patrol: The Movieis slightly more mature than the preschool-friendly TV series; the movieinserts elements of the universe, which destabilizes the admittedly flimsy logical structure of PAW Patrol. Skye asking how they can afford a newtower, for example, sets up a lame joke butin the process, it poses a question that undermines the movie's basic premise. Ryder answers lucrative merchandising (a metafiction joke that is a bit too close to reality to be funny), but this contradicts the latersuggestions that the group is relatively unknown in Adventure City. The movie is full of plot holes that make it difficult to suspend disbelief. It's not just that PAW Patrol omissions too: the iconic doghouses are gone, and as a result, there's no vehicle transformation sequence (the one element of the show that parents, whether they want to admit it or not probably do enjoy). Zuma is barely in the film at all, and Rocky and Rubble never really have a role beyond Rubble never really have a the rock music playing over the suit-up scenedrags), and the inoffensive adult-contemporary pieces detract from the action onscreen. The approach in the Feature film is to crib elements from other recent animated movies in lieu of translating what works in the TV show. If PAW Patrol: The Moviehas one fatal flaw, it san over-reliance on generic trends PAW Patrol: The Moviewill accomplish its primary goal of entertaining young children for an hour and a half, but it's not an experience anyone else will enjoy. The story is convoluted, the few jokes are tired and unfunny, and the attempts at pathos fall flat. Parents who have sat through hours of episodes and specials, like the 45-minute TV movies
 "Mighty Pups" and "Jet to the Rescue," will likely recognize many of the same plotlines and ideas being recycled in the movie. Chase losing his self-confidence, for example, or Mayor Humdinger causing a catastrophe by misusing technology; these basic concepts have been done better, by theseries. Following a formulaic approach is fine, and often beneficial for programming geared to young children; however, with a major feature-length film, Spin Master had a chance to do something truly epic with its pups it's a shame that the franchise went in a different, and much less interesting, direction. being more wholesome. Starting in 2016, PAW Patrol began producing hour-long films. In North America, they were released as TV movies, but in other parts of the most popular movie specials were Ready, Race, Rescue! and Jet to the Rescue. But in 2021, PAW Patrol finally got their first official, big-screen debut with Paw Patrol: The Movie. In the film, the PAW Patrol discovers their arch-nemesis Mayor Humdinger has just been elected to lead the nearby Adventure City. Sensing the coming mischief, the team heads out to save the city. Once again, the conflict and action are all super family-friendly, with one of the disasters being that the mayor has constructed a roller coaster-style loop for the citys subway (which to me sounds like a lot of fun). In 2023, PAW Patrol returned with another major film, PAW Patrol returned with another major film, PAW Patrol returned with another major film, a strange meteor crashes into Earth. Inside are several crystals, each giving the pups superpowers. But with their new abilities, the pups must face their biggest foe yet. The movie was a massive hit, grossing more than $202 million at the worldwide box office. That same year PAW Patrol also received the spinoff series Rubble & Crew, which has also been renewed for a new season. AnswerYou have no recently viewed pages When it comes to Nickelodeons animated PAW Patrol series, adults generally fall into two categories. The help with potty training. They laughed at Roy Kents reference to PAW Patrol in the latest episode of Ted Lasso. For everyone else, the only connection to the media and marketing juggernaut that is PAW Patrol is some vague familiarity with complaints on Twitter, from parents stuck at home with nothing but Zoom school and PAW Patrol ire-runs on Nickelodeon. For those who need some background: PAW Patrol is along the lines of Avengers or Justice League for children. A boy named Ryder (Will Brisbin) is the Nick Fury, the human leader of a group of adorable puppies, each with a rhyming catch-phrase. Every episode has a daring rescue to accomplish with courage and teamwork. Kids love them because the puppies are cute, brave, and capable. Also, like a boy band, the group is varied enough that each child can find one to identify with or pick as a favorite. Like the stories that children have loved for as long as there have been stories, PAW Patrol is about young characters triumphing when grown-ups are hostile or ineffectual. Instead of witches and giants, the menace is Mayor Humdinger (Ron Pardo), who looks like the guy on the Monopoly Community Chest cards. He is a childish, egotistical, election-rigging big city boss who wants his building to be the tallest and refuses to listen to experts or scientists.
wonder how they come up with these wild ideas! To supersize the PAW Patrol for the big screen and make it more palatable to parents, there are some upgrades in the voice talent. Black-ish star Marsai Martin is the highlight of the film as Liberty, a city dog and PAW Patrol fangirl who calls in the pups when Humdinger impetuously sets all of his inaugural celebration fireworks at once. Liberty, who longs to join the Patrol, helps address the series gender imbalance, previously just one female dog. A number of celebrities, some with young children who are likely fans of the show, provide voices as well, with Jimmy Kimmel as newscaster Marty Muckraker, Martins Black-ish co-star Yara Shahid as a climate scientist, Dax Shepard and Randall Park as Humdingers bickering henchmen, Tyler Perry as a truck driver who needs a rescue, Adam Levine on the soundtrack, and Kim Kardashian West as (what else) a pampered poodle. As the children cheer on the soundtrack, and Kim Kardashian West as (what else) a pampered poodle.
plot with fan favorite Chase (here voiced by Young Sheldons Iain Armitage), who is ashamed because returning to the big city reminds him of how terrified he was before Ryder found him there. Ryder is able to reframe the memory in a way that helps Chase see how strong he was, even when he was scared, and he learns that even heroes are not brave all the time. Parents will appreciate the way the pups tackle problem solving, working together to make the best use of each characters talents, coming up with alternative strategies when the initial plans are not working, and understanding the mistakes made by team members. Parents may not find much humor in a joke about how the pups expensive SHIELD-like headquarters and technology are funded by merch, or the depiction of adults as helpless or corrupt or both. But it would be a mistake to project a political message when its simply recognition of the importance and value for children in storiesfrom Hansel and Gretel to Pippi Longstocking to Harry Potterto be able to take care of themselves and others. Still, they may want to talk to children after the movie about whether someone always has to be the alpha and whether we should laugh at the embarrassment of others, after they find out which puppy is their favorite and what adventure they like to see the PAW Patrol have next. their first big-screen adventure! When their biggest rival, Humdinger, becomes Mayor of nearby Adventure City and starts wreaking havoc, Ryder and everyone's favorite heroic pups kick into high gear to face the challenge head-on. While one pup must face his past in Adventure City, the team finds help from a new ally, the savvy dachshund Liberty Together, armed with exciting new gadgets and gear, the PAW Patrol fights to save the city before it's too late? After all, no city is too small! Characters SynopsisOutside of Adventure Bay, a family of sea turtles crossing the road, a baby sea turtle struggles to climbs up and eventually across the road. At that moment, Gus, the truck driver, drinks a slushie and spills himself before he approaches a baby sea turtle in the middle of the road. He swerves to avoid hitting it, but his truck driver tells him to call the police or the fire department. Cap'n Turbot explains that in Adventure Bay, they call the PAW Patrol instead. He then calls Ryder, who summons the PAW Patrol pups, Marshall, Rubble, Chase, Rocky, Zuma, and Skye, into action. As the PAW Patrol makes it to the bridge, starting with Rocky and Zuma, who set up the perimeter around the bridge. Chase then uses his grappling hook to secure on top of the bridge and save Gus to pull him up to safety as he landed on the ground. When Mayor Goodway congratulates the PAW Patrol as the citizens cheer, the pups think that Gus truck has gas, but reveals that his truck is leaking maple syrup instead. Rubble then breaks out with pancakes, waffles and French toast. Afterwards, Chase and Ryder bring the baby sea turtle embrace its mother, Chase and the other pups started to howl for their success. Meanwhile in Adventure City, a Tough Guy is confronted by a dachshund named Liberty for littering in the subway train where she was riding on. She threatens to throw him in the trash if he didn't clean up his life from now on. As Liberty disembark from the subway station and briefly greeted by her friend Carmen before heading to City Square. At City Square, news reporter Marty Muckraker reports the PAW Patrols arch-nemesis, Mayor Humdinger, who has just been elected mayor after the other candidate mysteriously dropped out of the race. Liberty encounters Ruben and Butch, who warn her about dogs are restricted for entering. They started a slap-fight twice as Liberty encounters Ruben and Butch, who warn her about dogs are restricted for entering.
She then suspiciously discovers Humdinger appears on stage with The Kitten Catastrophe Crew, much to the civilians unimpressed. Humdinger knocks the wind-up dog park and breaks it, taunting Liberty that he's going to take over Adventure City, so he'll done with this place, she'll won't even recognize it. Back in Adventure Bay and inside of the Lookout, Ryder and the pups receive a message from Liberty, who admires her idols and explains that Humdinger is being elected mayor of Adventure City and the civilians ask for their help as the team agrees. Ryder tells the pups to pack their things and says "No city's too big, no pup's too small." While almost the pups excited, Ryder catches Chase, who is walking into the elevator and tells him that they need to go because the others need their help, but Chase refuses to go back to the city. After Chase leaves, Marshall asked of what's got Chase's leash in a knot, Ryder hesitantly reveals to the others that Chase has a "history" in Adventure City; as a young pup, he was abandoned in the city by his previous owners, leaving him alone and afraid in such a big place. After sharing Chase's backstory, Skye solemnly asked of that's where he found Chase, which Ryder somberly agrees and he brought him back to Adventure Bay. Afterwards, Ryder meets up with Chase, who was sitting alone by a tree, convincing him that everything will be fine and tells him to trust him. Thinking of Ryder's support, Chase reluctantly agrees that he trusts him. Moments later, Ryder checks off the pups to enter the PAW Patroller, especially Rubble, who had packed a huge stack of luggage and try to fit his luggage to the ramp door, but it falls onto him and claims that the whole stuff fits, which makes Ryder sighs of amused. He then start the PAW Patroller as the PAW Patro how to talk to people before guiding the PAW Patrol around from Main Street until they make it to the City Hall. Humdinger is enraged that the PAW Patrol has come to Adventure City since he was trying to get away from them, and leaves to go to his office with his henchmen and his kittens. First, Chase sets up the perimeter as he activates his cruiser into its armor mode, then Ryder deploy Marshall and Rocky to put out the fireworks. Starting with Marshall, who uses his water canon to shoot the fireworks with giant water being commended by Ryder while Rocky clear the damage fireworks in his hopper to crush them, causing his recycling truck rocking like a his parachute, Ryder tells him that they were a team, the civilians pulled together and things worked out okay. Chase asked about the citizens didn't and something happened to them and it was his fault. Ryder looks at Chase, distraught. In his office, Humdinger is infuriated after learning that Marty reports the PAW Patrol's arrival in Adventure City and saved his fireworks show, instructing Butch and Ruben to capture the PAW Patrol. Humdinger avenges the PAW Patrol had humiliated him for the last time as Butch and Ruben to get out of his office immediately. That night, Chase is unable to fall asleep when his friends are sleeping, going down the stairs and sits alone at the window as he kept dwelling over his mistake. While the next morning, Liberty wakes up and getting ready of her routine, then she drives her rusty wagon with a squeaky wheel to the grocery store where Tony works in. He frequently supplies her with fruit and asks her about the firework show last night. Liberty tells Tony that having helping her idols was the first time in her life she dreams to become the newest member of the PAW Patrol. henchmen are forced to flee. In the meantime, Ryder receives a message from the passengers, who informs them on the last loop and deploys the pups to rescue the passengers from the train before it falling down. After the PAW Patrol arrived, Liberty then arrived, and continues to help them, demanding the civilians to stand back. Rocky holds the rails with his hydraulic claws while Skye uses her grappling hook to secure the vertical loop upright straight. Using her afterburners, she and Rocky brace the track as Rubble stabilizes the poles with quick-dry cement. After the track is secured, Chase goes up to the rooftop from the other building and uses his zip line to the train cars so the passengers can be saved. As the passengers chanting his name, Chase tries to concentrate and attempts to across it, but his right paw slipped and he realizes that he was too high for him due to his fear of heights. Panic-stricken, Chase backs away from the ledge and freezing in the process. Skye alerts that Chase's in danger, Ryder notice this and commands her to rescue Chase, and Marshall rescues the passengers instead by going up to the car park and transform his ladder into a slide in order to get the passengers down. With Marshall is able to handle the rescue, Skye landed on the rooftop and ask Chase to tell her what happened. He doesn't know because he froze, Skye comforts Chase that the passengers are safe now, so she brings Chase back down to the ground. After the train rescue, Ryder sees a depressed Chase, who apologizes to him. He blamed himself and thought Chase that he'll be okay in the city, but this still too much for him, and advises him to take a break so he and the others will take care of the rescues for a while. Chase tells him that it's unfair, but Ryder tells him to the city and giving up on him when things get hard. Hurt by Chase's words, Ryder tries to reason with him, but Chase runs away in response. As Chase runs out of heartbreak, Ruben and Butch spotted and decide to catch him. Ryder and the pups rush towards the streets, calling out his name, and only to find Chase's pup tag on the ground. They distraught over Chase's disappearance, Liberty explains that they have eyes and ears in the city so can track down Chase. She informs them to "pound the pavement" and "leave no stone unturned", but only Rubble takes this too literally, saying that his tools can help him twice. Liberty asked someone to explain the whole thing to Rubble again. As a result, Ruben and Butch drive recklessly in their van, Chase, now collarless and captured, confronts them under arrest. Ruben exclaims that he and Butch are arrested, Butch then notices Ruben is wearing Chase's hat and they start fighting once again until they have eyes on the road properly. In the Fuzzy Buddies Obedience School, Ruben locks Chase in the room where he meets Barney who tells him about the place where they learn many tricks, only to be stopped by Delores. She explains about Humdinger imprisons all of the dogs of the city and turns this place into a dog pound because Humdinger is a dog-hating and a cat-lover, which disgusted to the three dogs. Rocket exclaims to catch himself around the room and it got away. Afterwards, Harris asks him about his story, but Chase doesn't know because he betrayed his team, kept messing up, and let everyone down. Delores can't handle with negativity, Harris comforts Chase and pick him out a doghouse, so he'll be here for a while. Meanwhile, Liberty and Ryder go to the bodega and ask Carmen about Chase's whereabouts, only to learn that all of the dogs in Adventure City having gone missing from the posters. Thinking that Humdinger is behind the disappearances, Ryder explains that Humdinger hates dogs in general. Fortunately, Liberty gives him an advice when she's like an honorary member of the team, so she sets herself up to be captured and taken to where Chase and the other dogs are incarcerated. Adventure City HO, Ryder takes Chase to the city intersection of where he had found him. At first, Chase seems annoyed that he reminds him of his painful past in Adventure City when he was just a young pup, but Ryder tells him that it's much more than that, it's also a great place. He then recalls the day about having their first met where Chase wandering the streets until Ryder saved his life from being hit by an out-of-control van when he approaches. He explains that he chose to save Chase, not out of pity of that even though he was too young for the city, Chase decided to get up and move on; he adopted him because that day, Ryder sees the bravest pup he'd ever met. Back in the present, Ryder knows that the city has been tough for him, but he also know that deep down and Chase was born to be a hero. Inspired by Ryder's words, Chase reassuringly accepts to resume his duties and rejoins the team after Ryder returns his pup tag to him. Several cast members from the main series reprised their roles, including Kingsley Marshall (voicing Rubble), Shayle Simons (voicing Rubble) Martin, Yara Shahidi, Kim Kardashian, Randall Park, Dax Shepard, Jimmy Kimmel, Tyler Perry, and introducing Will Brisbin in his film debut as Ryder. In the film, Ryder and the Paw Patrol pups are called to Adventure City in order to stop the recently elected mayor Humdinger from wreaking havoc. Ronnen Harary announced that Spin Master Entertainment was "considering whether to extend the Paw Patrol franchise into feature films at some point in the next 12 to 24 months" in November 2017. Development for the feature film based on the Paw Patrol television series began in February 2020, with Brunker attached to direct, and Barlen and Frolick attached to write the screenplay From October 2020 to May 2021, the voice casting call began. Production was done remotely during the COVID-19 pandemic. The film was produced almost entirely in Canada; according to Brunker, "95 percent of everything" happened in Canada, with the exception being some audio recording. Paw Patrol: The Movie premiered at the Vue Leicester Square in London on August 8, 2021, and was theatrically released in Canada by Elevation Pictures and internationally by Paramount Pictures on August 20, 2021. It was also made available on Paramount Pictures and became a box office success, grossing over $151 million worldwide against a production budget of $26 million. A sequel titled Paw Patrol: The Dino Movie, is scheduled for release on July 24, 2026. After being called by Cap'n Turbot to rescue a truck driver who has crashed through a suspension bridge, the Paw Patrol receives a message from a dachshund named Liberty, who informs them that their arch-nemesis Mayor Humdinger has just taken over nearby Adventure City in a fixed election. Chase initially refuses to go, as he has PTSD from being abandoned by his original owners in the city when he was younger, but reluctantly agrees to go after Ryder assures him everything will be fine. As Ryder and the pups settle into their new headquarters, Humdinger travels to a meteorology laboratory and commandeers a Cloud Catcher designed to suction up small clouds for research. Despite the warnings of head meteorologist Dr. Kendra Wilson, Humdinger uses the device to keep the city constantly free of rain. He later attempts to set off too many fireworks at once at a show, and the Paw Patrol, aided by Liberty, suit up to respond to the ensuing chaos. During the response, Chase sees some citizens trapped on a balcony and parachutes down to rescue them, but he forgets to take off his parachute and gets blown over the railing by a wind gust, badly frightening him. The next day, Humdinger unveils a loop-the-loop extension he has designed for the local el train; the structure quickly breaks, leaving a train stranded upside down atop a loop. Ryder sends Chase up to a rooftop to zip-line across and rescue the passengers, but Chase freezes in panic. Skye rescues him, and Marshall saves the passengers instead. After the train rescue, Ryder advises Chase to take a break. Chase angrily accuses Ryder of betraying his trust and giving up on him, and leaves. However, he is captured and taken to an obedience school converted into a dog pound. Liberty allows herself to be captured as well so she can speak with Chase and the other impounded dogs. The rest of the Paw Patrol follows Liberty, breaking into the pound and releasing the prisoners. As the other pupp, and explains that he adopted Chase because he saw bravery in him.Later, Humdinger reveals an extension he has added to the city's tallest skyscraper, putting his office at the very top. Kendra attempts to warn an indifferent Humdinger that the Cloud Catcher is being overworked and will soon dangerously malfunction. The machine goes critical, unleashing a hurricane on the town. Kendra calls the Paw Patrol to respond; they suit up, and Ryder names Liberty as their newest member and gives her a motor scooter to ride. As the pups help the citizens take cover, Ryder manually releases the elevator cables to quickly lower Humdinger and his kittens to the ground; he attempts to rappel down after them, but the storm blows the tower extension into another building, trapping Ryder in the debris. Seeing the tower fall, Chase uses a special motorcycle with suction cup tires to ride up the side of a skyscraper, arriving at the gap where the falling tower split its neighboring building. After briefly freezing up again when he realizes he cannot use his grappling hook, Chase remembers Ryder's words about his bravery and takes a leap of faith across the gap, finding Ryder trapped in the rubble on the other side and freeing him. They hurry down to safety, while Skye sacrifices her helicopter to destroy the Cloud Catcher and end the storm. Once the weather clears, Chase arrests Humdinger for gross negligence, public endangerment, and dognapping. The Paw Patrol is later gives Liberty her own pup tag and collar to make her a true member of the team, one of the former pound dogs calls the team for help, and they happily depart for another rescue. Iain Armitage as Chase, an 7-year-old German Shepherd who serves as a police pup. Armitage found the role special and enjoyable. He said, "It's a new challenge because you don't get to convey anything with your body movements that's all the animator's job," he then explained "You can only use your voice to convey whatever you're trying to show. But it's really fun to do animation."[7] Armitage replaces Justin Paul Kelly from the series. Marsai Martin as Liberty, a long-haired Dachshund who grew up and lives in Adventure City and a crowd dog who becomes the newest member of the PAW Patrol. Martin said this particular role was unique because it hits close to home.[7] Martin expressed her feelings about her role, "She's so energetic and fun, and I feel like she'd actually make a perfect fit into the PAW Patrol because of how amazing and wild she is."[8]Yara Shahidi as Dr. Kendra Wilson, a scientist who works at a university.[9]Kim Kardashian[a] as Delores, a Poodle who is working at an animal shelter after being jailed in the Fuzzy Buddies obedience school.[9] Kardashian said she was excited to voice the part, thrilled that her children now consider her a "cool mom".[10]Randall Park as Butch, a burly man and one of Mayor Humdinger's security guards who attempt to keep the pups out of Adventure City.[9]Dax Shepard as Ruben, a skinny man and another of Mayor Humdinger's security guards. On voicing his character role, Shepard stated that Paw Patrol "was the first show he was forced to watch after becoming a dad but admitted that he actually enjoys it", adding: "that earned him some serious cred with his kids". He concluded: "I get to reintroduce my kids to that experience of going to the movies that I valued so much growing up".[11]Tyler Perry as Gus, a truck driver. Perry, on his role, saying that his 6-year-old son Aman is also thrilled that his father is involved in the film. "He loves Skye and Chase and Zuma. I know the theme song like the back of my mind," he stated in an interview. "...That's the reason I said yes. I really wanted to be a part of something that he could appreciate as much as I do."[12]Jimmy Kimmel also had trouble convincing his kids of his role in the film. "I have been telling them, trying to explain to them that Daddy's in the Paw Patrol movie," the late-night host jokes. "I'm hopeful this will make me a big shot, at least for a couple of days."[12]Will Brisbin as Ryder, a 10-year-old boy who leads the Paw Patrol. Brisbin had to keep his role a closely guarded secret for some time, which he found difficult as his nine-year-old brother is a huge Paw Patrol fan.[10] Brisbin replaces Beckett Hipkiss from the series. Keegan Hedley as Rubble, a 5-year-old English Bulldog who serves as a construction pup. He becomes the main comic relief character in the film as opposed to the series, so Hedley was encouraged to improvise during his recording.[10] Lilly Bartlam as Skye, a 7-year-old Cockapoo who serves as an aviator pupKingsley Marshall as Marsh Paw Patrol's arch-nemesis from Foggy Bottom who is elected the mayor of nearby Adventure City. Pardo said he drew inspiration for Mayor Humdinger's voice from mixing impressions of a Dudley Do-Right cartoon character with a well-known American entertainer from the 1930s-1950s.[13]Cap'n Turbot, a sea captain and animal expertKim Roberts as Mayor Goodway, the mayor of Adventure BayPaul Braunstein as a tough quy on a subwayNeil Crone as Tony, the proprietor of the namesake of his grocery storeJamillah Ross as a camerawoman working for Marty MuckrakerJosh Robert Thompson as the fireworks technician that Mayor Humdinger enlisted to pull off his fireworks showJoe Pinque as Barney, an Old English Sheepdog and inmate at Fuzzy Buddies obedience schoolRaoul Bhaneja as dadSaara Chaudry as daughterFive side characters from the original series also make non-speaking cameo appearances in the film: Francois Turbot, Katie, Mr. Porter, Farmer Al, and Farmer Yumi.[14]In November 2017, Ronnen Harary confirmed that Spin Master was "currently considering whether to extend the Paw Patrol franchise into feature films at some point in the next 12 to 24 months". Animation tests were conducted in 2017 to measure how the characters "would translate onto the big screen" and the company developed a film script.[15]Development of the film was confirmed on February 21, 2020, with Cal Brunker attached as director while Spin Master Entertainment's president, Jennifer Dodge serves as the film's producer.[16] Production was done in both the United States and Canada.[17] On March 13, 2021, an exclusive first look of the film was shown during the Nickelodeon Movies to bring the franchise to the big screen. She adds, "This first foray into the arena of feature film marks a significant strategic expansion for Spin Master Entertainment to harnessing our own internal entertainmen theatrical experiences."[19]Dodge said, "For us, it was important to be able to tell a deeper character story than what they've been able to do with the series." She also explained, "And to tell it in a way that a child really can understand and relate to, and maybe even their parents get a deeper meaning from it. You can have a hard day at school or daycare and you can rise above those difficulties and you can come through on the other side. It doesn't mean you who believe in you, you can overcome it."[20]"When the chance came to pitch my take on the movie, I was able to bring all of their experience and what my kids loved about the show to the pitch, and I think that really helped," says Brunker. "Our take was, we really wanted to build this around the emotional journey of one characters overcoming their struggles, and the whole team is involved, but we felt that that was the best way to bring an audience deeper into the story. [20]Iain Armitage, Marsai Martin, Yara Shahidi, Kim Kardashian, Randall Park, Dax Shepard, Tyler Perry, and Jimmy Kimmel were announced as part of the cast.[21] On May 3, 2021, the cast and characters were announced.[22] Adam Levine, Perry and Kardashian joined the cast because their respective children were fans of the show.[23] For the role of Ryder, more than 1,000 people auditioned before Will Brisbin, a 15-year-old actor from Sherwood Park, Alberta, Canada, got the role.On July 14, it was announced that Ronan Keating, Richard Arnold, Sam Faiers and Tom Fletcher were added to the cast as part of the voice cameos for the dubs in the UK and Ireland. [24][25]During an interview with Collider, Brunker spoke about enjoying the voice cast overall. "The core cast of pups and Ryder are all kids, and that was new for us and really wonderful. We really wonderful. We really worked with them to try to get true, meaningful performances out of all the characters, and I thought they did an amazing job. The character of Chase, played by Iain [Armitage], goes on such a wonderful emotional journey that's a little bit unexpected, and he just brought so much to it. He broke our hearts in some moments. You really end up rooting for him. In terms of improvisation, I would say Marsai's deliveries were the things that were most surprising. She almost couldn't do anything bad. When we were going through the takes, it was like, "This is great in a different way." She was wonderful and brought so much energy to it. Everybody was wonderful. Dax [Shepard] is the nicest guy, who was game on for everything. Tyler Perry was thrilled to be a part of it. His son is a big fan, and he certainly loves to improvise and do lots of takes. We couldn't have had a better experience for recording them."[23]In an interview with Screen Rant, Iain Armitage spoke about the film and how he aspires to be like his canine counterpart Chase, ahead of the film's home entertainment release. He stated about the film and how he aspires to be like his canine counterpart Chase, ahead of the film's main character, "Chase is a fun, funny, smart, brave, loyal dog. And he's a police dog, and he's apolice dog, and he's apolice dog, and he's apolice dog. And he's a things. I think he's very cool under pressure. He's very helpful. And he always loves to help other people. And he's always succeed, but I try, "According to Armitage, "The cool thing about voice-over is, you can't convey things with your body because, of course, they don't see it. So you sort of have to have everything that you're going to be doing for the character come through in your voice, which is hard, but it's also kind of fun. It's a fun challenge, but on the upside, you can show up to work in pajamas, and they won't get mad at you. So that balances out. But I think just trying to really bring emotion into my voice in some of those scenes and to really make it clear that I care about Ryder [Will Brisbin] and my fellow pups on the team."[26]On February 21, 2020, Bob Barlen announced that he would co-write the screenplay with Billy Frolick.[27][19] Director Cal Brunker, who also wrote the film along with his childhood friend Bob Barlen and Billy Frolick, came to the film with a solid understanding of the characters thanks to his own kids. [20] Screenwriter Barlen described the main character, and so being able to expand and kind of have a character who fails and who has to overcome an obstacle is important. We were able to do more than the TV show time allows. Starting in Adventure Bay, you see him as that same perfect pup from the show where he's executing things flawlessly. That's really where we were able to expand on his backstory and create something that would be worthy of the feature film. So you're seeing him for the first time really ever make mistakes and mess up and come to terms with not being perfect, and then pushing that we were excited about in terms of telling a story."[20]Brunker adds, "At its core, the movie is about what it means to be scared, and how to overcome your fears. It felt really important to be doing something that we could share with people at this time as the movie comes out. I think people are coming out of this time of fear and uncertainty, and I think the movie sthat people get to see in theaters again. "The film also represented the fulfillment of a lifetime dream for Bob Barlen and Cal Brunker, who had been making films together for decades. Brunker had known Barlen since they attended high school, and would make films with him later into their respective careers: "Back before we ever got a chance to make a movie, Bob and later into their respective careers: "Back before we ever got a chance to make a movie, Bob and later into their respective careers: "Back before we ever got a chance to make a movie, Bob and later into their respective careers: "Back before we ever got a chance to make a movie, Bob and later into their respective careers: "Back before we ever got a chance to make a movie, Bob and later into their respective careers: "Back before we ever got a chance to make a movie, Bob and later into their respective careers: "Back before we ever got a chance to make a movie, Bob and later into their respective careers: "Back before we ever got a chance to make a movie, Bob and later into their respective careers: "Back before we ever got a chance to make a movie, Bob and later into their respective careers: "Back before we ever got a chance to make a movie, Bob and later into their respective careers: "Back before we ever got a chance to make a movie, Bob and later into their respective careers: "Back before we have a movie, Bob and later into their respective careers: "Back before the make a movie, Bob and later into their respective careers: "Back before the make a movie, Bob and later into the make a movie, Bob an went to Hollywood for the first time, and we actually paid to go on the Paramount lot tour. You know, you get to see behind the gates. We said to each other, wouldn't it be amazing if one day we were making a movie for Paramount coming out. And to be entrusted with such a beloved brand for so many people and to be able to share that with the world, this is a dream come true for us. It's been something we've been working towards for a long time and, and it's a real gift."[20]On November 8, 2019, it was announced that Mikros Animation in Montreal would handle the animation.[28] There are 250 filmmakers with a team of about 60 devoted to the animation. Their biggest challenge was creating high-quality theatrical animation that didn't lose the style of the series. They were also especially interested in creating action scenes that had more of a realistic quality. [20] While they wanted to focus on the backstory of one character, it was also important to them to add a new female pup to the crew, since the character Skye is usually the only female on the team. New pups often appear in the series for a specific adventure to round out the team, but then are not necessarily in every episode going forward. [20] Barlen stated about adding a new pup to the film: "For us, in terms of actually creating Liberty, it was really fun because one of the nice things was that we were able to create a character that maybe was a bit different than the pups in the Paw Patrol are perfect and they're great. They're a certain way, but Liberty has got a little bit of an edge to her, which is nice. Having her experience and seeing her experiencing the film from her point of view, as she relates to the Paw Patrol, is really fun. And then, in terms of Marsai Martin who plays her, she's such an incredible actress. It was such a gift that she agreed to do it because she really looking to have her on.' Brunker says that Liberty is a new character, which allows them to write differently for her than the other pups. They also knew when she grow up in Adventure City, it justifies her having a little bit 'thicker' skin and a tougher way of talking. He stated that it is fun to juxtapose with the attitudes that the other people used to from the regular core growing up on animated films and loving them well past when I was grown, is that it's so many people coming together and being a filmmaker is that your work is seen by hundreds of thousands or millions of people. Animation allows us to work at a scale where we can do something spectacular and really special on screen."[23]"My daughter is a huge Skye fan", says Brunker. "She was four when we started making this movie. So, we wanted to give Skye fan", says Brunker. "She was four when we started making this movie. So, we wanted to give Skye fan", says Brunker. So, we wanted to give Skye fan "She was four when we started making this movie." would be wonderful. Because she's new for the movie, we wanted to make her stand out. We thought that because she was from the city we could make her a little tougher, a little more rough around the edges than the other pups are, and that would bring something fresh to that world as well."Dodge and Brunker both thought the style of the animation needed to remain true to the series, but with some significant adjustments to give it a more theatrical feel. According to Brunker, they wanted to redesign some things noticed in the movie: "The back legs of the dogs actually look and function like real dog legs and in the TV show they're kind of more cartoony; just kind of stick legs. We felt it would allow them to move more like real dogs, and if we could push the realism of the movement, then it would make the fact that they're doing these great big rescues and all this heroic stuff even more exciting."[20]At a reported budget of $26 million,[4] the CGI animation is more polished and textured than the series, with Brunker and his team reshaping and rebuilding every character, vehicle and environment from scratch. Aside from some voice recording in Nashville, "95 percent of everything" happened in Canada, according to Brunker. [29] Heitor Pereira composed the music for the film. He previously collaborated with director Brunker on The Nut Job 2: Nutty by Nature.[30] On June 2, 2021, it was confirmed that Maroon 5 lead singer Adam Levine; Shellback and Oscar Grres are the producers, while Savan Kotecha serves as the executive producer.[31] The track was officially released on August 6,[32] and sent to Italian radio on October 1, 2021.[33] Another song, titled "The Use in Trying", was announced on August 6,[32] and sent to Italian radio on October 1, 2021.[33] Another song, titled "The Use in Trying", was announced on August 6,[32] and sent to Italian radio on October 1, 2021.[33] Another song, titled "The Use in Trying", was announced on August 6,[32] and sent to Italian radio on October 1, 2021.[33] Another song, titled "The Use in Trying", was announced on August 6,[32] and sent to Italian radio on October 1, 2021.[33] Another song, titled "The Use in Trying", was announced on August 6,[32] and sent to Italian radio on October 1, 2021.[33] Another song, titled "The Use in Trying", was announced on August 6,[32] and sent to Italian radio on October 1, 2021.[33] Another song, titled "The Use in Trying", was announced on August 6,[32] and sent to Italian radio on October 1, 2021.[33] Another song, titled "The Use in Trying", was announced on August 6,[32] and sent to Italian radio on October 1, 2021.[33] Another song, titled "The Use in Trying", was announced on August 6,[32] and sent to Italian radio on October 1, 2021.[33] Another song, titled "The Use in Trying", was announced on August 6,[32] and sent to Italian radio on October 1, 2021.[33] Another song and Italian radio on October 1, 2021.[33] Another song and Italian radio on October 1, 2021.[33] Another song and Italian radio on October 1, 2021.[33] Another song and Italian radio on October 1, 2021.[33] Another song and Italian radio on October 1, 2021.[33] Another song and Italian radio on October 1, 2021.[33] Another song and Italian radio on October 1, 2021.[33] Another song and Italian radio on October 1, 2021.[33] Another song and Italian radio on October 1, 2021.[33] Another song and Italian radio on October 1, 2021.[33] Another song and Italian radio on October 1, 2021.[33] Another song and Italian radio on October 1, 2021.[33] Another s additionally serves as producer. [54] When the film was released on disc, it entered the national NPD VideoScan First Alert sales chart at No. 2, debuting at No. 3 on the dedicated Blu-ray Disc chart. [57] Paw Patrol: The Movie aired on Nickelodeon on November 18, 2022. Following its debut Reminiscence, The Night House, and The Protg as well as the limited release of Flag Day and was initially projected to $1214 million. It went on to debut to $13 million, finishing second behind holdover Free Guy; 88% of the audience was made up of families, 63% being under the age of 25. The opening was noteworthy because Regal Cinemas, the second-largest chain in the U.S., refused to carry the film due to its day-and-date release.[60] The film fell 50% in its second weekend to $6.6 million, finishing in third.[61] It then made $4 million in its third weekend, declining 40% and finishing in fifth place.[62]Worldwide, Paw Patrol: The Movie premiered in six markets, making $5.8 million in its first weekend, including a $2.3 million in 39 markets; the top countries were Germany ($2.6 million), the Netherlands ($1.1 million), Mexico ($864,000), France, and the United Kingdom. It also had a South Korean opening in a mere 240 theaters, a decision by the Korea Theater Association to release local titles instead.[64] In its third, the film was screened in 46 markets and grossed $10.3 million, which included #1 openings in Spain, Argentina, and Chile.[65]On the review aggregator website Rotten Tomatoes, the film holds an approval rating of 6.3/10.[66] On Metacritic, the film has a weighted average score of 50 out of 100, based on 14 critics, indicating "mixed or average reviews".[67] Audiences polled by CinemaScore gave the film an average grade of "A" on an A+ to F scale, while PostTrak reported 81% of audience members gave it a positive score, with 66% saying they would definitely recommend it.[60]Randy Myers of The Mercury News gave the film three stars out of four and said, "This old-fashioned, G-rated animated children's film (young children, that is, not teens or tweens) does everything it intends to do. And does it well."[68] Kristen Page-Kirby of The Washington Post gave two and a half stars out of four and said, "A better movie than it needs to be, with some neat visuals, an outstanding score and a story that, while simple, is well told."[69] Glenn Kenny of The New York Times called the film, "Entirely toddler-friendly and irony-free".[70]Nate Adams of The Only Critic gave the film a B, and wrote in his review, "I think three to six-year-olds are going to wince with glee at the sight of their favorite puppers saving the day, but the parents who are forced to go along for the ride will appreciate the film's cheery sense of humon and educational elements."[71] Lisa Giles-Keddie of HeyUGuys gave the film four stars out of five and said, "A relentlessly entertainment big screen outing for the familiar pups. A perfect slice of summer cinema for all the family."[72] James Mottram of South China Morning Post gave the film three stars out of five, saying "Paw Patrol: The Movie is a solidly entertaining film for kids, with plenty of crash-bang action."[73]Nell Minow of RogerEbert.com gave the film two and a half stars out of four, saying "Parents will appreciate the way the pups tackle problem-solving, working together to make the best use of each character's talents."[74] Courtney Howard of Variety found that, "Any crass consumerism is eclipsed by disarming, demonstrable themes and meaningful sentiments woven throughout the film's textured fabric."[2] Yolanda Machado of TheWrap gave the film a positive review, stating "Brunker and his co-writers find a way to deliver a multi-layered story that can grab toddlers while keeping older viewers entertained and not groaning at some propagandized messaging."[75] Frank Scheck of The Hollywood Reporter called the film, "Harmless fun for its target audience".[76]Sarah Bea Milner of Screen Rant gave the film a negative review, saying, "PAW Patrol has enough action to keep young fans entertained, but parents will likely be bored by the dragging pace and convoluted plot."[77] Jude Dry of IndieWire gave the film a D, and wrote in her review, "While it's doubtful the humorless dirge of a movie will make enough of an impression to mold young minds in any lasting way, the critique of PAW Patrol is useful as an amalgamation of certain favorite Hollywood themes that ought to be retired."[78]Writing for The A.V. Club, Jesse Hassenger criticized the film's merchandise and gave the film a C saying, "The film version feels most energized when it's amping up to sell toys: fetishizing the clicking of plastic into plastic, and supersizing the country."[79] Writing for Los Angeles Times, Michael Ordoa criticized the film for writing under the parents despite 'its awesomeness' for very young audiences. He stated, "To very young kids who like cartoon dogs driving shiny vehicles, "PAW Patrol: The Movie" may be awesome. To grown-ups, it may be an aggressively under-written, 88-minute toy commercial. He felt that the voice actors were "unremarkable" and criticized the script, writing, "The dialogue is fairly represented by the line: 'Where is it? There's so many buildings. I wonder which one it is.'"[80]AwardDate of ceremonyCategoryNominee(s)ResultRef.Directors Guild of CanadaOctober 23, 2021Best Sound Editing - Feature FilmJ.R. Developed by Drakhar Studio and published by Outright Games, it was released for PlayStation 4, Xbox One, Nintendo Switch, Microsoft Windows and Stadia on August 13, 2021. [86] [87] The game received mixed reviews. [88] [89] It was the third video game based on the series overall; this game is set before the events of the film where the pups including Chase, Skye, Marshall and the new city girl Liberty embarks on a mission to save Adventure City from Mayor Humdinger who becomes a mayor in a buzzing metropolis with his selfish scheming. Rocky and Zuma are playable characters, but they are not featured in the box art. While Liberty was not wearing her uniform in the box art, she does wear during the games played. [90] Main article: Paw Patrol: The Mighty MovieMain article: Paw Patrol: The Dino MovieIn August 2021, director Cal Brunker stated that he would like to make a sequel to the film. "We've certainly thought about it. There are other stories that we would be excited about telling.
